NOTE TO EDITORS

The Treasury published the DMO's remit for 2004-05 on 17 March 2004 as part of the Budget 2004 announcements. Following the Treasury's announcement on 22 April 2004 that the outturn CGNCR for 2003-04 was £2.9 billion below the forecast in the Budget the DMO's remit was adjusted, with total planned gilt sales falling by £0.9 billion to £47.1 billion. Conventional gilt sales are planned to raise £39.3 billion in 15 auctions whilst planned index-linked sales are for £7.8 billion in 10 auctions. Gilt sales in the financial year to date are £30.2 billion (cash) relative to the target of £47.1 billion.

The auction announced today is the seventeenth of the 2004-05 remit and the eleventh of conventional stock; it is the first auction of 4¾% Treasury Stock 2010. Short conventional gilt sales of £14.8 billion (cash) are planned in 2004-05; short conventional gilt sales to date are £8.3 billion (cash).

The new gilt will not pay a coupon on 7 December 2004 but will pay a first coupon on 7 June 2005, which will be slightly larger than the normal semi-annual coupon to account for the additional interest from 19 November 2004 to 7 December 2004. The value of the coupon payable on 7 June 2005 (a “long” first coupon) will be £2.608607 per £100 nominal of stock. The formula for calculating accrued interest during the “long” first coupon period can be found in Section Two of the DMO’s paper “Formulae for Calculating Gilt Prices from Yields”, updated on 15 January 2002 (www.dmo.gov.uk/gilts/public/technical/yldeqns_v2.pdf). Examples for the calculation of accrued interest during a “long” first coupon can be found in the DMO’s Operational Circular “Accrued Interest Calculations on 4¼% Treasury Stock 2032 until 7 December 2000” issued on 16 May 2000 (www.dmo.gov.uk/gilts/public/technical/opcirc1605.pdf).

Copies of the full prospectus are available on request from the addresses given below and on the DMO website, www.dmo.gov.uk. Only stock applications made on the forms sent out by the Registrar to Approved Group members will be accepted in the auction.
